

New Dogs, Old Tricks

NEW RELEASES

A series that follows the very realistic, very funny and very relatable lives of Danny Barker and Sarah Dawson – a new couple trying to navigate through college while dealing with surrounding conflicts of classes, social lives and other responsibilities to make it into true adult life in one piece.

Every episode will follow the lives of Danny Barker – an All-American fraternity brother of Gamma Pi Omicron – and his girlfriend Sarah Dawson – an independent college co-ed filled with morals and responsibility – as they deal with their friends, classes, work and all other situations that pop up around them:

The first season of this series will introduce us to the real world of life on campus from the perspective of the people living there – A world that is rarely shown with truth and humor in a series such as this. Throughout the season, we see relationships drift apart as new ones come together. While Danny and Sarah are our primary couple, their friends are in every single episode. We explore these friendships through their ups and downs, as well as all of the antics that go along with them.
