EPISODIC SYNOPSIS

EP01 – SENEGAL

Surrounded by the Atlantic Ocean, Senegal offers a great diversity of surf spots: point break and breach break. The Dakarian Peninsula, located at the most westerly point of Africa has a precious opening to capture the swell. With its year-round sunshine and its dozens of surf spots – Senegal has something to delight surfers whether it's summer or winter. But beware... usage of a wetsuit is necessary! Believe it or not, water is cold in Senegal.

EP02 – MOROCCO

With 3,600 kilometers of coastline and admirable beaches, Morocco is a must-see surfing destination. Beginners to experienced surfers will find their account as the wave season extends through the year, with more powerful swells from November to February. Reef waves, beach break, tubes, water temperatures between 16-18°C, hot days and cool nights – all these characteristics make of Morocco a surfing Oasis!

EP03 & 04 – CAP VERDE

Former Portuguese colony, Cape Verde is the crossroads of European, African and South American cultures. African cradle of windsurfing, Cap Verde's archipelago offers very nice surfing conditions. Even though Jet-Stream winds blow from November to April the water temperature remains pleasant year-round – between 21-25°C.

EP05 & 06 – NAMIBIA

Wedged between South Africa and the Atlantic Ocean, Namibia is not the first country that comes to mind for a surf trip. And this, despite Namibia's legendary Skeleton Bay wave. This eternal left-hand barrel runs a perfect sand bank. Desert landscapes and its endless unlisted long roads are the only way to reach the waves. Namibia's Waters are quite surprising with their strong currents, their cold-water temperature (15-20°C) and their brownish color. One thing is for sure - Adventure is to the rendezvous!

EP07, 08 & 09 – SOUTH AFRICA

South Africa makes you dream! With its surf spots that have marked history - Cape Town Surf, Jeffreys-Bay, Garden Road, Durban – surfing world renown waves is part of everyday life. The South African coast surfing has enough to offer to satisfy the Pros but its spectacular waves will also accommodate all levels of surfers. The constant and charismatic waves of South Africa make it one of the best places in the world to learn surfing or improve your technique. Sharks add to the exoticism of South Africa without harming the joys of surfing in this magnificent natural environment.

EP10 & 11 – MOZAMBIQUE

Coconut palms and white sands are the portrait of Mozambique's beaches - a country which's natural wealth is certainly not limited to that. While the coast of Mozambique remains a mystery for many, it's amazing waves and its warm local community await the most curious. The beautiful region coexists several worlds– there's the chaos of the Maputo Capital, the calm and minimalist rural life and the long turquoise coasts. The best surfing season extends from May to August, all the while the tropical region maintains water temperatures between 22-26 °C year-round. There's something to delight the most cautious!

EP12 & 13 – MADAGASCAR

Madagascar – sublime island that emerges from the Indian Ocean. It finds its charm through its unique biodiversity and the contagious smile of its people. Fourth largest island in the world, there's certainly no shortage of shore to find a wave at your feet. Generally, the best waves swell on the island between April and July and offer a - yet unexplored – surfing potential!
